At The Table: How Connection Makes Us Better People

When your teams intentionally navigate toward a shared vision, they ask, "What will get us there?" Through this participative keynote, Ginger shows leadership teams how to translate the power of alignment into deep connections across diverse stakeholders.

This session is ideal for diverse leaders and teams who want to come together and build strong, resilient, diverse teams. It's for organizations who haven't had the opportunity to build authentic connections and are therefore missing the opportunity to build robust relationships. It's for those that are experiencing emotional roadblocks of pride, vulnerability, and conflicting interest as they navigate uncharted business objectives together. And for those that have been thrust into a challenging task force and need to develop a common mindset, language, and rhythm to succeed.

Lively, interactive, chock full of new and usable ideas, practices and tools, Ginger answers the question - why are we our very best selves when we're at the table, as host or guest? Our lives ARE our tables. Find out why the stronger, best and most fruitful relationships start At The Table.

After participating in this session, you will be able to:

- Feel a sense of relief and camaraderie realizing that they are, after all, in this together.
- Gain a genuine re-energized excitement as you uncover language and tools to explore exponential possibilities beyond the traditional organizational structure.
- Gain confidence that their reliance and communication with each other will absolutely deliver results.

- Connection = Communication: The Language of Leadership
- Speaking To Connect: Have Fun Speaking with Any Audience

Ginger's teaching is based on the foundation and elements of human connection. Every event = classic structure + tailored for the specific group. Guests are invited to interact as soon as we engage, including short kickoff & review meetings to set up for best success, primer videos for the intended audience and marketing, and a request to reply to 2 primary questions in advance of the session, to guide specifics to fit the groups.
